

KILLED ON TRAIN

Frank Clifton Slays
Dave Pitman in Bledsoe Co.

Reports reach here of a shooting which occurred at Sequachee College in Bledsoe county Friday evening, in which Dave Pitman was killed by Frank Clifton. Pitman was standing on the steps of the local mixed freight and passenger train, known as the "Cannon Ball." The killing was done with a revolver. Pitman, it is said, had been paying some attentions to Clifton's wife, which he resented. Pitman's wife left him some months ago. Both men were formerly employees of the Dixie Portland Cement Company at Richard City. Pitman left there some time ago, and Clifton recently.

Clifton surrendered to the authorities of a Bledsoe county, and is out on $1000 bond. His trial will take place at Pikeville tomorrow.

To Address High School

The State Superintendent of Schools, Samuel H. Thompson, Wm. R. Brown, State High School Inspector, and Mrs. Pearl W. Kelly, State Library Director, will be at the High School in Jasper on Monday Jan. 19, and will make addresses to the school and public at 2:30 p. m.

The public is especially invited to come out to hear these addresses, which will be of vital interest to all who desire bigger education in Tennessee and especially in their home county, Marion.

James Layne

JASPER, Tenn., Jan. 5.—James Layne died at his home in Jasper Saturday morning at 4 o'clock. He had been ill with dropsy for a considerable time. His remains were interred at Rosewood cemetery one and a half miles north of Jasper Sunday afternoon. Among other relatives present at his death and burial were Harley Lane of Chattanooga, cashier of the Southern Ice Co., and Mr. and Mrs. David Cox, of Chattanooga.

WORK RESUMED AT WHITWELL

Coke Ovens Once More Set in Blast.

WHITWELL, Tenn., Jan. 5.—The suspension of work at Whitwell mines last week, and the week before, which was regarded with misgivings, was only temporary. Owing to the breaking down of machinery at the Dixie Portland cement plant, at Richard City, where the slack coal got from screening the run of mine was used, the T. C. I. & R. R. Co. had no market for its slack coal. Not making coke at the Whitwell plant, and no place to store the slack until a market could be secured, they were forced to shut down. This situation was lengthened for a considerable period longer than was first expected, for the Dixie Portland Cement people took advantage of their enforced shutdown to make other necessary repairs to their plant and the further fact that it was the Christmas holiday season, when labor is hard to secure to run a manufacturing plant, was another cause for their determination not to run until after the first of the year. The Whitwell mines also had a market for slack or run of mine coal at the Hale's Bar construction work, where a multitude of engines were constantly employed. To offset this loss, the ovens at Whitwell have been started up at once to utilize the slack on the spot as there is a splendid market for screened coal.

The lighting of these ovens have given employment to a large number of men and means much to Whitwell, giving a brighter outlook to the business of the place. Had the shut down remained enforced for any considerable length of time it is probable that an exodus of families would have resulted as, owing to the expenditures of the Christmas season, the unexpected shut down caught many of the miners unprepared.

Seven Hogs Bring Over $211.00

J. D. Lewis, of this county, undoubtedly has the record in hog raising. He has just concluded the sale of seven hogs, which brought him the neat sum of $211.75. They were a four year old sow and six shoats which were an even twelve months old. The weight of the sow dressed was 491 pounds, which at 95c amounted to $46.65. The shoats sold at 10c per pound, and their weights dressed were 292, 279, 287, 259, 252, and 304 pounds. They found a ready market at Guild, where Mr. Lewis took them to market.

The sow during her four years of existence upon this stormy earth, has been a regular gold mine for Mr. Lewis, bringing three large litters of fine pigs, besides presenting him with nearly $50 worth of good meat upon her demise. The shoats were all quick grown, and for that reason were money makers for their owner. The weights given all are net dressed weights. Mr. Lewis says there is money in hog raising—when the price dressed is 10c per pound. The six shoats weighed 1651 pounds, an average weight of 275 pounds, or $27.50 per hog.

We are pleased to place the Hamilton County Herald upon our exchange list. It is a good one, and edited by W. B. Cleage, well known in this county. It goes after the ring rule of Chattanooga, which for a long time has placed that city in an unfavorable position, especially as regards management of whiskey deviltry. We hope the Herald will do good and hold 'em down.

Special to the News.

Getting wood and building fires is the order of the day in this section now.

Some sickness prevails in this section now. John Francis is very low with typhoid fever. Dr. Davis of Chattanooga has been to see him twice this week.

Mrs. Mary Jane Sharp died Tuesday of last week of consumption. No hopes of her recovery have been cherished for several months. She leaves a husband and three children. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family. Interment was made at the old Pot church, beside other relatives who have been buried there.

Mrs. M. L. Richie with little Miss Bertha, were visiting Mrs. Ellen E. Layne Sunday afternoon.

Arley Richie went to Kelly's Ferry Sunday, as bad as the day was. Certainly there must be some attraction down there.

A. J. Richie has made a good mandolin banjo and is making another one. If anybody wants a musical instrument, they would do well to call on him as he says he can make anything from a Jews harp to a steam organ.

John Lusk and family were visiting at W. A. Francis's Sunday.

Sam Lusk and wife were visiting the sick at W. A. Francis's Sunday.

John L. McNabb, of near Kelly's Ferry, were visiting friends and relatives in this section Saturday night and Sunday.

T. H. Richie and wife went to Chattanooga Monday shopping.

THE NEW YEAR

The old year had joys for many and sorrows for some. It is impossible that any who have sorrow could fail to appreciate joys, because the way of sorrow and disappointment is the crucible which refines the gold and fills the heart with happiness. Best happiness cannot be obtained by great possessions, distinctions or fame always, but these do much to put joy into life and sweet thoughts into the soul. Some have gathered plentifully in the old year. The rains have descended, ships have come from afar laden with treasures and gold has filled their purses. Rich and rare gems are enthroned in homes, fame has caught up names and written them in high niches, and the world applauds. Precious lives have been written on history's page for the future generations to read. Men hitherto comparatively unknown are now crowned victors. The world calls this success and so it is, but is it the gem which never dims? We saw a man whose feet trembled along the highway and the sight of his eyes was almost gone. His raiment was thin and scant and the wintry wind chilled his frame. His hands were sore and hard and a little bundle he carried made faltering steps less steady. Not aimless, though, were they, for nightfall pressed upon him and the place of rest, the humble home, sent up a faint light to cheer and welcome. The day's work, little as it was, had been finished, and he laid at the feet of the place he called home, the tribute of a grateful soul. A frugal thought fills the hearts of this home, but a scanty meal awaits them. This over and from the shelf the old man draws his prayerbook or his Bible and with a heart full to overflowing they go to their evening devotions. What they possess gives them but little concern and what they do not own disturbs them less. The great truth which they live fills the humble board and provides their thoughts and makes up their store and hope. The old year is waning and in it they gathered no gold for the refuser but their lives grew and expanded in the light of the cross and now, as the dawn of the new year breaks they set their faces on the same Great Pilot.

This is the gem that never dims, not brought in ships or rans, nor bought in the market place—the pure heart refined by the Master. If you turn over a new leaf for 1914 let it receive His blessing. Whatever may be your possessions claim them only for their use, for God owns all and He, alone, keeps us, sleeping or awake. In Him we lie down to rest and by Him we rise up to walk for the day's duties. Let us plan in His name and whether storms envelop us or sunshine surrounds us, the captain cannot err and the boat will reach the port in safety. Grateful that the black camel has passed us in the old year, be of good cheer and set out with the One who knows and loves in charge, and contentment will reign in your life and hands and feet will be busy in life's way just as He directs. You have suffered mayhap; if so, you have our sympathy.

May the new year hold for all many good things.

C. A. Quarles for Register

We are authorized this week to announce C. A. Quarles for the office of Register of Deeds for the good old county of Marion. Everybody knows "Charley" Quarles as he is more commonly known instead of the more sounding appellation of "C. A." So it is "Charley" Quarles that we have to deal with, and toot to the house tops and into the marts and thoroughfares of Marion.

In the first place, Mr. Quarles is not a new man to the office. He held the position about four years, and he was a good official in every way. The republicans gave the nomination to another man, Mr. Rogers, two years ago, principally because of his faithful services for the party, and not because of any failing or deficiency in the business of Mr. Quarles in conducting his office. Now, that the party debt is in a measure repaid, Mr. Quarles feels that he is entitled to again come before his party as a candidate for its honors.

He is Baptist, and a staunch and true one, following the precepts of his religion in dealing with his fellow-men, conscientious and clever. He is a "square" man all the time acting on the square, and doing business on the square, for he is not a member of the well known firm of Quarles & Raulston, doing a general mercantile business on the South Side of the public square. Hence he is an anomaly—a square man all round.

He is a member of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Jasper, a very strong organization, and also of the Masonic lodge of that place. Hence the square comes in again, for is not the square a Masonic emblem and do not Masons do things on the level and the square?

He is a firm republican and has always stoutly stood up for the principles of his party in every way. He solicits the nomination on the grounds that his record in every way as an official was good, and that, if elected, he will earnestly endeavor to attend more faithfully, if possible, to the duties of the office.
